RECENT CHALICE MEMORIALS

Recently, our Assembly has sent out chalices in memory of Deacon Wayne Rascati and William Keenan.

Deacon Wayne was widely known to be untiring in support of his family, his church, his community, our order, and his nation. For many years, Wayne was the local representative on the catholic Committee on Scouting and served as a deacon at St. Raphael parish. He was also the head of engineering at our local post office. After retirement, he became a Special Education teacher. Bill supported the Knights and its charitable activities in many ways. He was active with Boy Scouts. He was known in mathematics and computer design circles.

In gratitude and celebration of their years of knightly service, the Assembly has commissioned chalices memorialized in their names. Deacon Wayne's has been sent to the Diocese of Fairbanks, Alaska, for use in the chapel of their Frassati House of Discernment in Fairbanks, Alaska. Bill's chalice has also been sent to the Diocese of Fairbanks, Alaska, for use in the remote Eskimo village of Kotlik at the mouth of the Yukon River where it enters into the Bering Sea. This diocese is on the frontier of the faith as the only fully missionary diocese in the United States. It is larger than any other state. The majority of the Catholics are native Eskimos and Athabaskan Indians living in remote areas. There are only 16 priests for 46 parishes. Only 7 parishes are accessible by road. The other 39 parishes are reached by boat, small plane and/or snowmobile. The diocese has become a leader in evangelization. by Richard Scholl
